Rita,

Had a chance to look at some of the links Amy Martinez provided regarding welcoming cities. The articles are fairly straight forward, feel good and let's all get along. I am more concerned about the "Inclusivity Board" as outlined in the Westminster Charter. Most of the Powers and Duties section smack of agenda 21 and J provides for funding to a "sufficient level" putting the determination of sufficient in the hands of the board.

If we are going to copy Westminster we should look at their Growth Management Program---

Let me know what you think,
Laurrett

Westminster Charter:

- CHAPTER 14. - INCLUSIVITY BOARD

- 2-14-1. - Creation.

There is hereby created the inclusivity board, hereinafter referred to as "the board," consisting of up to 13 regular members with two alternate members. Each member may serve up to four consecutive terms, after which time the member shall be required to take at least a one-term break in service before being eligible for membership again.

(_____)

- 2-14-2. - Advisory Members.

An employee appointed by the City Manager's office, and one member of the City Council, to be appointed by the Mayor, shall be advisory members of the board and shall have the right to participate in all meetings of the board; except that they shall not have the right to vote.

(_____)

- 2-14-3. - Powers and Duties.

The powers of the board shall be advisory only and shall be as follows:
